

ethiopia duromina

cherry blossom | stone fruit | grapefruit | oolong tea

duromina is a small cooperative consisting of 329 member farmers. they were the first cooperative to begin working with technoserve several years ago. technoserve is a multinational nonprofit company which helps farmers with everything from funding to technical assistance to finding markets for their products. they've really laid out a fantastic path for duromina, and have helped create a sustainable market for them.

duromina is also one of the founding members of the kaya maduga cooperative union. in ethiopia, unions are large companies that act as the actual seller of coffee to buyers in other countries. there's quite a bit of corruption and red tape inherent in these companies, with a rather cloudy process of how much money goes back to cooperatives. duromina's union represents several cooperatives that worked with technoserve to guarantee transparent payment to cooperatives.

this coffee is grown between 1980 and 2100 meters, and is fully washed with wet fermentation. the coffee is dried on raised beds, with post-drying hand sorting. it consists of heirloom varieties.
